

Aspen (1185-3 A)
Shingles and Lap Siding

The poetic call of rustling Aspen leaves is perhaps one of the most inviting sounds Mother Nature offers up to us as we hike woodland trails or settle down for a picnic in a Northwest Aspen grove. The soft, smooth, pale bark is equally soothing to the eye and mind. The Aspen is not a large tree, although one in Yorkshire, England is recorded at 130 feet in height with a 3½ foot diameter! One of this tree's biggest fans is the beaver which considers the Aspen bark to be a very tasty treat indeed.
